Executive Biography

Stella Low

Chief Corporate Affairs & Communications Officer, HP Inc.

Stella Low will join HP Inc. on 1 August 2022, as the company's Chief Corporate Affairs & Communications Officer. She will be responsible for managing HP's reputation and brand narrative as one of the world's most admired companies, and will oversee all internal and external communications, Sustainable Impact Strategy, and the HP Foundation.

With more than three decades of experience in marketing and communications, Stella takes a strategic, multi-channel approach to corporate affairs and communications, delivering impactful stories to employees, customers, analysts, media, and influencers. She has a strong record of creating worldwide campaigns that engage audiences and deliver results that support business objectives.

Stella has a deep background in tech communications, having served in executive leadership roles at several major technology companies where she focused on building global teams, amplifying brands, and enhancing company reputations. She is passionate about leadership and developing world-class, highly motivated teams.

Most recently, Stella was the Head of Global Communications at Apple, and prior to that, led a complete transformation of Cisco's Global Communications function as SVP and Chief Communications Officer.

Her experience also includes leading Global Communications at EMC and Dell Technologies, where she was instrumental in developing the award-winning communications strategy behind the largest technology merger in IT history. Her work earned her a reputation as an expert in leading communications during times of change, crisis, and sensitivity.

A native of the United Kingdom, she currently resides in the Bay area with her husband, daughter, and three dogs. She is active in her community and is an advocate for heart health awareness and improving cardiovascular health. She currently serves on the Board of Directors for the Bay Area Division of the American Heart Association and is the 2022 Chair for the nonprofit's Go Red for Women movement.

Stella will be based at HP's Palo Alto headquarters.
